

GET OFF THE INTERSTATE and really experience Virginia!

Lost Communities of Virginia Driving Tours guide you through communities that are off the beaten path. Discover forgotten main streets, general stores, train depots, schools, churches, banks, post offices, and farms. Visit local restaurants, familyowned businesses, small museums, and other interesting cultural sites. Experience the history, flavor, landscapes, and occasional lost communities of backroads Virginia.

The Lost Communities of Virginia book and continuing initiative strive to make a wide audience aware of the many small, once thriving communities in Virginia. Our back road driving tours through Virginia's small communities suggest historical points of interest, provide unique cultural experiences, and support local businesses that exemplify the ideals of the tour through their buildings, landscapes, or history. # CAUTION WHEN DRIVING Tips & Tricks for a Safe Trip

- Many roads are scenic and only 2 lanes. Unless otherwise noted, all roads were paved and passable when we visited, but be alert to changes and obey speed limits.
- Watch for animals and slow vehicles like farm machinery and respect their speed. Remember, many people live here because they cherish the peace and quiet and slower pace.
- The entire route will take more than one day to travel. There are bed and breakfasts and hotels in the area if you'd like to make this a longer adventure.
- Local businesses included in the brochure tell stories of the community's past, provide unique cultural experiences, or are located in a historic building. Due to space constraints, just a sampling of these businesses are included here. You're encouraged to be curious and sample the local flavors.
- There are a few places listed in the brochure that are not open to the public, but are identifiable landmarks along the route. Please respect the privacy of the property owners.
- Cell phone signal is likely to be spotty.
- Virginia Tech parking passes are needed on campus. Virginia Wildlife

  Area Management, Access Permits are required where noted.

While all efforts have been made to create a map that is easy to follow and correct, roads can change or not look quite the same on a map as they do when you are on them. Consider bringing a copy
